International mobility is growing steadily. The number of mobile students has doubled since 2000 and is set to reach 9 million by 2025. France, the world’s 4th-largest host country and the largest non-English-speaking one, aims to double the number of students hosted between 2000 and 2025.

Guided by the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Higher Education and Research, and in cooperation with higher education institutions and associations, Campus France advances that goal by applying its expertise to increase France’s appeal to international postsecondary students and researchers.
