The Centre de Formation des Journalistes (Journalists Training Centre, CFJ), a private institution of higher technical and vocational education (with non-profit status) grants a diploma recognised by the French Ministry of Education and the profession. Journalism students at the CFJ are introduced to all writing genres, all forms of expression proper to print, broadcast and multimedia journalism. Through its up-to-date facilities, the CFJ trains journalists who are immediately operational. The CFJ has developed a genuine international dimension through its partnerships with the University of Westminster (London), Communication University of China (Beijing), Université Laval (Quebec) and IHECS (Brussels), as well as with international media including Al-Jazira, CNN and the BBC.

◆ MAIN PROGRAMMES OF STUDY

Initial training in journalism (all media) in 2 years
Applicants accepted at bac + 3 level (3 years of post-secondary studies) in all disciplines
Masters-level diplomas

◆ RESEARCH

Partnership with research centres in France (IFP) and abroad (Communication University of China, Université Laval in Quebec)

◆ STRENGTHS

The most selective school in France: 1,000 applications for 35 places. Strong international dimension. Practical and academic training, provided by working journalists.

◆ LOCATION

In the French press's historic centre (2nd arrondissement of Paris).

http://www.cfpj.com

Member of Campus France Forum