SCIENCES PO RENNES

Created in 1991, Sciences Po Rennes offers pluridisciplinary programmes in human and social sciences as well as professional specialisations adapted to the demands of the job market.

During its 5-year course of studies, Sciences Po Rennes proposes a specific pedagogical project in order to provide the future senior managers of the private and public sectors, in France, Europe and the rest of the world, with broad knowledge and the ability to precisely grasp the issues they will be confronted with.

◆ MAIN PROGRAMMES OF STUDY

At Sciences Po Rennes, the course of studies is organised in two cycles.

- First pluridisciplinary cycle (three years): the first three years focus on the core elements that characterise Sciences Po (pluridisciplinarity, work and analysis methods, opening to the world) through subjects such as Economics, Law, Political Science, Philosophy and two mandatory languages.

- Second specialisation cycle (two years): the goal is to enable students to be recruited right after two years during which they specialise for the Master's Degree they choose. Today, we offer 13 specialisation tracks within four schools (School of Public Policies, School of Journalism, School of International Affairs, School of Management of Organisations).

Sciences Po Rennes has offered a 5-year French-German course of studies together with the Catholic University of Eichstätt-Ingolstadt since 1998.

◆ RESEARCH

- Within its premises, Sciences Po hosts the CRAPE (Research Centre on Political Action in Europe), a joint research centre (UMR 6051) in social sciences, common to CNRS, Rennes 1 University, Sciences Po Rennes and l'EHESS.

- In May 2015, the Board of Sciences Po Rennes approved the creation of the Territories and Mutations of Public Action (TMAP) Professorship. Its ambition is to make our institution a pole of excellence when it comes to analysing the territorial scales of public governance in France and Europe.

- Teachers-researchers at Sciences Po Rennes do individual and/or group research which lead to high-level publications and symposiums.

◆ STRENGTHS

- One of the main assets of Sciences Po Rennes is the density and diversity of its international network, with more than 120 foreign universities on the five continents, located in 40 countries.

All of the students have to spend their third year abroad (at a university and/or for an internship).

- An intensive course of French as a Foreign Language is offered to all international students before school starts.

◆ LOCATION

Rennes is the capital city of Brittany. The city hosts numerous universities and its population is young and dynamic (60,000 students). It takes two hours to reach Paris by train and less than one hour to be at the seaside or on the beach.
