The University of Rennes is made up of training components (UFR, faculties, schools, institutes), research centres and five grandes écoles which participate in the development and implementation of the University of Rennes' strategy: École des hautes études en santé publique (EHESP), École nationale supérieure de chimie de Rennes (ENSCR), École normale supérieure de Rennes (ENS Rennes), Institut national des sciences appliquées de Rennes (INSA Rennes), Sciences Po Rennes. The University of Rennes is also partnering with the University of Rennes 2, the National School of Statistics and Information Analysis of Rennes (ENSAI) and the Agro Rennes-Angers Institute to pursue and develop joint projects. The national research organisations - CNRS, INRAE, Inria, Inserm - and the University Hospital of Rennes participate as partners in the development and implementation of the scientific strategy of the University of Rennes. Since 2019, it is part of the European alliance EDUC (European Digital UniverCity), one of the first universities selected by the European Commission.
